Marriage is a great good for society!

- Family is the first school of social life which becomes the animating principle for the broader community. It is from the family that citizens come to birth.
- Without children, cultures die, nations die, and the human species dies. Nothing is more fundamental to the common good than children, and nothing matters more to the well-being of children than the health of marriage and family life.
- When marital breakdown or the failure to form marriages becomes widespread, society is harmed by a host of social pathologies, including increased poverty, mental illness, crime, illegal drug use, clinical depression, and suicide.

Family is the first and vital cell of society. Strong societies are built upon strong families. Strong families are built upon strong marriages.
